Introduction

The popular American humorist, lecturer and author Mark Twain once said that “golf is a good walk spoiled.”¹ However, had Mark Twain visited many of New Jersey’s beautiful golf courses he probably would have added to his comment “but made enjoyable by the extraordinary beauty of the golf course.”

Those who play golf and only pay attention to their swing, their score, or who won or lost the match are missing out on an aspect of the game that is arguably more important than winning or losing. Indeed, it is likely the this introverted golfer ends many a round of golf feeling stressed out by the competition of the day and dissatisfied with his or her performance, and would agree with Mark Twain, the day’s walk was spoiled.

However, the golfer that finds time during the round to take in the beauty of the golf course is likely to gain greater joy from the day on the golf course and, in spite of the score, feel satisfied following the round.

Consider the beauty of a sunset at the Crystal Springs Golf Resort’s Ballyowen Golf Course, or the sunset over Galway Bay from the 9th hole of the Galway Golf Course in Ireland, the deer sharing the Crystal Springs Golf Course with players, or of the old Dooks Links Golf Course in County Kerry, Ireland. All are spectacular in their beauty and you don’t even need to swing a club.

Golf Event Photos provides photojournalistic services to golf outing organizers, golf courses and outing sponsors who wish to make their golf event special and memorable by not only capturing the participants in the event in photographs but the beauty of the golfing event and the golf course hosting the event.

This document has been produced to provide those interested in making their golf events special with an introduction to how Golf Event Photos can help achieve this goal.

When the top level golf event organizers and golf courses managers decide to make an event extra special and a premium experience for the participants they call on Golf Event Photos. This is true of Private Golf Clubs that are determined to make their club championship, member guest tournaments and couples events golf outings that the members will remember. Likewise, top public golf courses will take the extra step of including Golf Event Photos photojournalistic services in their event plan to ensure that premium corporate, business and organizational outings are very special and memorable for sponsors and participants.

The services provided by Golf Event Photos are well above traditional photographic service offerings. This ensures that those sponsoring a golf event and those playing in the outing will remember the event long after the awards ceremony has come to an end. The services provided by Golf Event Photos include:

- Photographs of the outing as a group
- Photographs of individual players with golf organizers and golf course managers
- Photographs of each team or foursome
- On course action shots of the golfers as they compete in the event
- A photographic slide show of the photographs taken by Golf Event Photos during the event presented at Awards Ceremony at the conclusion of the outing
- Photographs of the Outing Skill and Score Winners
- The posting of the photographs of the event on the Internet on a dedicated web site
- The development of a news paper article supported by photographs to be released to local newspapers
- The availability of photographs for organizers, golf course managers and participants on an individual photo basis or on a CD included all of the event photos

More can be learned about these photojournalist golf outing services by visiting the Golf Event Photos web site at www.golfeventphotos.com. Interested event organizers and golf course managers can complete a form on the web site describing their upcoming golf event in preparation for planning with Golf Event Photos for their special event.
